George Zoglio, CPA

Director, Professional Development and CAAS

After nearly a decade as a contracted 20-20 Services instructor, George joined the management team in the newly created role of Director of Client Accounting & Advisory Services (CAAS) and Professional Development training. In addition to his instructor responsibilities, George is heavily involved in program and business development.

Always known as a “people person,” George brings twenty-five plus years’ experience in the fields of accounting, auditing, budgeting, reporting, financial planning and analysis and taxation. He most recently was the principal of his own consulting firm, Zoglio Financial Management Solutions, where he provided outsourced CFO and controller services. His unique set of skills, knowledge, and expertise – combined with a passion for interpersonal skills as well as continual learning and development – is the perfect match for his role.

A resident of Boston, MA, he is a graduate of Bryant University, receiving both a BS in Accounting as well as an MBA in Management. He is a member of the AICPA and the Massachusetts Society of CPA.

He is also an Everything DiSC® Certified Practitioner (a clear “i” style which comes as no surprise to those who know him), and skilled in facilitating teams in understanding their DiSC® behavioral personality style to effectively improve teamwork, communication and productivity.
