Spencer Ingram

Instructor, Tax

For nearly 20 years, Spencer has been the managing principal of Ingram Accounting and Consulting LLC, which provides accounting and consulting services to hundreds of small businesses, insurance agencies, individuals, and non-profit organizations.

At 20-20 Services, Spencer acts as an instructor for both public training and in-house courses for tax and auditing.

Spencer Ingram, originally from Vero Beach, Florida, earned his bachelor's degree in accounting from Florida A&M University, and master's degree in business administration from Florida State University. Shortly after, Spencer was accepted as a CPA by the State Board of Accountancy.

Since 1999, Spencer has hosted a weekly talk show called "Business Insight". He is a member of the board of directors for the Council on Cultural Arts (COCA) and the finance committee for United Way of the Big Bend. He is a longtime advisor of the John G. Riley House Museum for which he helps identify opportunities for partnerships and innovations to further the organization's mission. Spencer resides in Tallahassee with his wife, Janeia, a Florida licensed attorney, and daughter, Olivia.
